this book examines education transfer specifically focusing on pedagogic transfer and analyzes what happens when lesson study is introduced into foreign contextual settings lesson study a professional development approach that originated in japan 150 years ago has been widely considered one of the best practices for collaborative professional development there is an underlying assumption behind education transfer that when best practice is transferred to another country it will generate a similar effect and improve schooling quality since pedagogic practice is socially constructed the best practice in one setting may not be meaningful in another contextual setting this book makes a unique contribution to the field of comparative education by offering a sociological examination of why pedagogic transfer often fails to bring expected benefits it is comprised of three parts part i pedagogic transfer and lesson study provides contextualized analysis of lesson study in japan and abroad and presents how the meaning of practice is always reinterpreted against the local educational context part ii presents a sociological analysis of indonesian teachers practice based on ethnographic fieldwork it conceptually analyses the nature of the teacher community and their practice and is presented as teacher strategies the concept showed that teacher culture and practice are not fixed but constantly negotiated within the institutional setting part iii sociological understanding of pedagogic transfer builds on the analyses in part i and ii and provides a theoretical understanding of the issue of pedagogic transfer professional responsibilities of teachers collegiality and teaching expertise in japan and indonesia are compared to understand how the meaning of lesson study was reconstructed in the Indonesian setting in conclusion recommendations for an alternative approach to professional development are offered reflects both the classic building blocks of reformation history and also the new historiography which has emerged in recent years more Americans now identify as political independents than as either Democrats or Republicans tired of the two party gridlock the pandering and the lack of vision they've turned in increasing numbers to independent and third party candidates in 1998 for the first time in decades a third party candidate who was not a refugee from one of the two major parties Jesse Ventura won election to state wide office as the governor of Minnesota in 2000 the public was riveted by the Reform Party's implosion over Patrick Buchanan's presidential candidacy and by Ralph Nader's Green Party run which infuriated many Democrats but energized hundreds of thousands of disaffected voters in stadium sized super rallies what are the prospects for new third party efforts combining the close in personal reporting and learned analysis one can only get by covering this beat for years Micah Lisifry's Spoiling for a Fight exposes both the unfair obstacles and the viable opportunities facing today's leading independent parties third party candidates continue to be denied a fighting chance by discriminatory ballot access unequal campaign financing winner take all races and derisive media coverage yet after years of grassroots organizing third parties are making major inroads at the local level efforts like Chicago's New Party and New York's Working Families Party have upset urban political machines while gaining positions on county councils and school boards third party activists are true believers in democracy and if America's closed two party system is ever to be reformed it will be thanks to their efforts
